Culinary Creations

By: Keiarra Daniels

On September 29th 2016 Culinary was in the makes of two vegetable stocks, and one beef stock. The ingredients used were onion scraps, celery scraps, carrot scraps, and different scions. We entered the kitchen with an extraordinary smell of broth. Ms. Miller had the students gather around us as we asked the questions needed and they had answered politely and energetic like. One of the questions asked was who had made the stocks, they all proudly said "All of us" showing their proficiency in teamwork. It all looked good to me!

Student Experience Interview

By: Keiarra Daniels

I asked, along with Amanda Usevicz two 10th grade students, and three 9th grade students the following questions:

- How long have you been in your shop?
- Why did you come to your sending school?
- What is the different from your sending school than West Side CTC?
- Does your shop influence what your career choice will be outside of school?

And we have hoped to get honest answered from the following students:

Ania A. /Trevor U. /James M. /Kimberly S. /Gabrielle J.

*In this issue we will cover the two 10th graders*

Ania is in 10th grade, her shop is marketing and Business. She has been in her shop for a year. She believes that West Side CTC is a good career path choice. The difference from her sending school and West Side CTC is the sending school does not have the proper program for marketing career choice. Finally, her shop will influence her choice of career in the life after high school.

Trevor is also in 10th grade, his shop is Multi Media. He has been in this shop for a year. He believes West Side CTC is a better option than his sending school in terms of learning his trade. The difference in his sending school and Wes Side CTC is that they don't have good trade opportunities. His shop choice will influence his choice in careers in the life after high school.

Vote for Jose he'll will save the day

By: Morgan Bowers

We interview Joes one of the questions that we asked Joes was: What made you want to run for class president? He answer was "I ran last year and I felt that west side ctc deserves a change to make the school a better place". Another question we asked was: What do you think is most important about being a class president? He answered "To be the person the people want you to be to be active and participate in the school". We asked him another question: What do you plan on doing as a class president? "As much in my power as I can, wither it be a great prom, school trips, more activates". The last question we asked Joes was: Do you have any words for potential voters? "Vote for Joes, he'll save the day". Joes was also the Titian of the month.
